SPORTS WILL HELP WHIP THE BOERS SAYINGS AND DOINGS . IN TIMMONY'S COURT

Whiriwind Schewed, the hero of two imaginary battles and the victim of police court jokes for two years, was asked as courteously as practicable if he broke up the stuff again in Moyer's lodging house.

"To tell the truth," answered he, convincingly "it was caused accidentally by something out of sight."

"Yes" said the court. "Ten days That "Five days. Sunday rule, you know."

The last sentence was lost upon the whirlwind, who shuffled off to his seat.

Tom Fitzpatrick, an Irish delegate, said he had taken whisky or beer, or "whatever you call it." As the officer knew nothing of the latter mixture, he could not say it was intoxicating, and Fitz skinned out for home.

His honor lectured a crowd of young hoodiums, "Glenn Ludlow and three Hulls," as the prosecutor called themfor disturbing a meeting in the Fourth ward, and court adjourned.

W. L. DeMoss, the old scout, who mixed with his employer, A. S. Benjamin, at the Colorade corral cabin, tried to look over his bandage at the court. "Charged with fighting," said Diehl, "Presume that's what you'd call it," said the scout.
"Gness I'm gullty, too," said Benjamin, caressing a wad of court plaster on his cheek.

The court surveyed the pair, "It's a
